Richard and Betty Sutter

Dr. Sutter has served on several committees and boards and is a past president of the St. Louis County Medical Society. He was the only physician appointed by President Nixon to serve on the advisory committee to the original Occupational and Safety Authority (OSHA). Over his long and productive career, Sutter, a World War II Bronze Star recipient, earned numerous awards and honors, including the Alumni Achievement Award from Washington University School of Medicine in 1955 and the Health Achievement in Industry Award from the American Occupational Medicine Association.
